Herewith referred to as "the Licensee".

WHEREAS the Publisher has licensed a range of third party full-text content
(herewith referred to as "the Content") for inclusion in its CAB Abstracts Full Text Select product ("the Product").

WHEREAS the Licensee already holds a current subscription to the CAB Abstracts database, either directly from the Publisher or via a commercial vendor, and desires to access the Product for an agreed fee, subject to the terms and conditions of this Licence.

IT IS AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

1. Usage of the Content shall be governed by the same terms, conditions and definitions as those specified in the License Agreement previously signed by the Licensee and relating to their subscription to the CAB Abstracts database.
2. For the avoidance of doubt, the Content is provided for research, teaching or personal study only, and may not be put to any Commercial Use. Content included in the Product may not be systematically copied, mounted or distributed on any electronic network, or reproduced without the permission of the Copyright holder, other than as described in Clause 3 of the License Agreement.

3. The Licensee acknowledges that any and all copyright, trademarks, logos and other intellectual property rights subsisting in the Content shall remain the property of the Content owner. No transfer of ownership to the Licensee or to the Publisher is implied through the signing of this Licence.
4. The Product is licensed in conjunction with a current subscription to the CAB Abstracts database. Online access to the Content is provided for as long as the Licensee holds a current subscription to the CAB Abstracts database and to The Product, but shall be withdrawn upon cancellation or termination of a current subscription to the CAB Abstracts database.
