

All Member Countries of CABI

09 January 2012

Dear Members

Welcome to the CABI Member Gateway

On behalf of CABI CEO, Dr Trevor Nicholls, I am very pleased to be able to welcome you to the CABI Member Gateway, a dedicated website for our Member Countries, and to thank you for your long-term partnership and support in helping us achieve our mission over the past years.

As an international science-based development and information organization, owned by 47 member countries, CABI is uniquely placed to respond to national development agendas and demands. We can be viewed as an international extension of your national capabilities in agriculture and the environment, helping you and other countries make a difference in addressing issues of global concern such as food security and climate change.

CABI values the partnership with her Member Countries highly. Strengthening engagement and communication with your countries, and actively addressing your countries' needs are high on our agenda. By working together, I believe that we can contribute to food security and a sustainable environment in your country and beyond.

I would strongly encourage your countries (Band1-4) to take up membership benefits such as free access to information products and free identifications of microbial samples, and invite you to visit this useful website regularly for updates.

I look forward to working closely with you towards further partnership of mutual benefit

Yours sincerely

Qiaoqiao Zhang (Dr)
