

CABI Landscapes Initiative

Harriet L. Hinz, Global Director Invasives

18-20 February 2025, Regional Consultation, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

According to the United Nations Environment Programme:

“achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) by 2030 will require a radically different paradigm of development than was applied to the Millennium Development Goals. A new approach that breaks down sectoral barriers, capitalizes on synergies in land uses and human development, and strengthens coordination and participation of a wide range of stakeholders is needed.

Integrated landscape management (ILM) is that approach.”

CABI Landscapes Initiative

Addressing Member Country concerns about impact of climate change, land degradation, and invasive species

Contributing to CABI's MTS Goals

Using an Integrated Landscape Management (ILM) approach, which refers to long-term collaboration among diverse stakeholders to foster natural resource resilience at the landscape level with the aim to provide sustainable livelihoods and improve ecosystem goods and services

Co-create and scale thriving resilient landscapes for both people and planet, reaching 50 million people over the next 10 years

Strengthen capacity

Improve ILM
Governance structures

Increase adoption of ILM approach

Create sustainable income sources
