

How to submit your title

CABI actively encourages publishers to submit print or electronic life sciences journals for consideration for indexing in our databases. Both print and electronic journals are accepted; in both cases access to the full-text publication is important. New submissions are reviewed monthly on the basis of subject matter, potential yield, and geographic origin, with responses sent to publishers following each review.

To submit a journal for consideration, please send two print issues or the journal's URL, together with publisher contact details (including email details preferably) to:

CABI also invites publishers to send a complimentary copy of new books in the life sciences area for review in our databases. A copy of the resulting review will be supplied to the publisher.
